

Paul Marcoux
Vice President, Green Engineering
Cisco Systems, Inc.

Paul Marcoux is the Vice President of green engineering for Cisco Systems. As the new "Green" CDO Czar, Paul is responsible for driving Cisco's green initiatives both internally, externally, and to customers and the market.

His career has included executive positions in Financial, Healthcare and Technology industries over a span of 30 years; providing consulting, design, engineering and management services for 3 plus million square feet of domestic and international data centers, from small LAN rooms to a state-of-the-art 2N data centers. His most recent position was with American Power Conversion Corporation (APC) where he held an executive position reporting to the CTO and founder of APC.

Paul has tremendous industry presence and vision. He has many publications, white papers, patents and public presentation on topics like Data Center Technology & "Greening". He has authored two subject matter books, Small / Medium Data Center System Specification & Project Manual and Telecommunications Rooms System Specifications & Project Manual. Paul holds degrees in electrical and mechanical engineering and has a Masters in Business Administration. He is also a founding member of The Green Grid Organization and The Green Grid Technical Committee.